TEC LESSON

INTRODUCTION

This lesson teaches you how to use the correct format in typing military orders.

Orders are the verbal and written means by which a commander gives official instructions to units or individuals under his command.

One of your responsibilities as an administrative specialist will be to type military orders in the proper format from given information. There are several ways that you may receive the information you need. It may come to you on a Disposition Form, on a written Optional Form (OF 41), or in verbal instructions from your supervisor.

Throughout this lesson you will receive the needed information on Department of the Army Form 2446 which is titled REQUEST FOR ORDERS. This form is usually prepared and verified by the Personnel Services Branch and is sent to you in the Administrative Services Branch.

On the job there may come a time you will be required to initiate this form as well as to type the military orders requested by it. However, in this lesson you will be given a completed and correct Request for Orders and you will only be required to type the military orders it requests.

Before going further open your copy of AR 310-10, read paragraph 2-13, and examine Figure 2-3. This will illustrate what a completed Request for Orders looks like.

Even though, for this lesson, you will not have to prepare the Request for Orders, you should be familiar with it and with its uses. You should also be able to decide if the information given you on the Request for Orders is sufficient to type the requested military orders IAW AR 310-10.

The first part of this lesson will describe the Request for Orders which will be your major source document when typing military orders other than those for temporary duty (TDY). The parts which follow will describe the procedures to follow in typing military orders IAW AR 310-10.

TEC LESSON

REQUEST FOR ORDERS -- DA FORM 2446

The information provided by each of the titles on DA Form 2446, Request for Orders, is described below. Refer to the illustration on page 9, or to Figure 2-3 in AR 310-10, while reading these descriptions.

1. DATE OF REQUEST: Identifies the date the form is prepared.

2. TO: Identifies the agency of the command to which the completed form is sent. This is the agency that will type the actual military orders from the Request for Orders. In this case it is the Administrative Services Branch.

3. FROM: Identifies the individual or office that is requesting the military orders. This is the person or agency that prepared the Request for Orders. REMEMBER: You will usually not be responsible for preparing the Request for Orders. However, you will be responsible for understanding it so that you can type the military orders it requests.

4. TITLE OF FORMAT: Identifies the type of ACTION being requested on the military orders. There are many different ACTIONS that may occur on military orders. Each has its own FORMAT. All the FORMATS used for military orders are contained in Appendix A of AR 310-10. They are listed by title (subject) in the index (index pages 137 through 138).

5. STANDARD NAME LINE: Identifies the individual (or unit) affected by the ACTION of the military orders being requested. Paragraph 2-6 and Figure 2-1 of AR 310-10 tells you more.

6. LEAD LINES: Identify and control items of variable information (see below). You will learn more about lead lines later on. The important thing to remember for now is that lead lines are given as part of the FORMAT.

7. VARIABLE IFORMATION: Consists of data which corresponds to a lead line. This information is not part of the format, but varies according to tne individual situation. Note that one item of variable information is the format number. This number is determined by the type of action being requested.

8. DISTRIBUTION: Lists those who should receive the military orders and the number of copies each should receive. Paragraph 1-16, AR 310-10 gives you more information on distribution.

9. REQUESTER'S NAME/ PHONE NUMBER Identifies the individual who has requested (or has been directed to request) that the military orders be published. Requests for orders should be signed ONLY after all the data on the form has been verified as being correct by the office that prepared the form. The phone number is usually an AUTOVON number.

10. REQUESTER'S SIGNATURE: Payroll signature

Once a Request For Orders is received in the Administrative Services Branch, generally the following steps are taken:

- Verification of the information and the signature of authorized requestor.
- Logging and assigment of an order number.
- Typing of the order in its entirety, in the correct format, and proofreading it.
- Printing of the order in the required number of copies.

TEC LESSON

For the purposes of this lesson, the information on the Request For Orders which will be given to you has been verified and is correct in terms of content, spelling, and use of abbreviations. You need not look for errors on these Request for Orders but should use the information just as it is shown.

PARTS OF MILITARY ORDERS

Before you can type military orders you must first become familiar with the different SECTIONS and PARTS. On the following page is a completed Military Order and the Request for Orders that was used to give the information for that Military Order. Listed below are the different SECTIONS of the Military Orders and the parts that make up each section. As you read the information locate each section and part on the sample Military Order on p. 16. Each is identified by its matching number.

A. Heading Section:

1. LETTERHEAD.
2. TYPE OF ORDERS AND ORDERS NUMBER. Later in this lesson you will learn how to find out the type of orders and how to figure the ORDERS NUMBER.
3. DATE. This is the date the orders are published.

B. Body Section:

4. STANDARD NAME LINE. This line shows who (individual) or what (unit) is affected by the orders.
5. CONSTANT INFORMATION. This information announces the action to be taken. It is not part of the Request for Orders, but is given as a part of the format in AR 310-10, paragraph 2-7.
6. LEAD LINES. The Lead Lines are given in the particular format that you use when preparing the military orders. The lead lines are the same as those found in the Request for Orders.
7. VARIABLE INFORMATION. This is the information that follows the lead-lines. The variable information is not part of the format but rather it varies depending on the situation and on the individual/unit being affected by the military orders being published. It is found in the Request for Orders.

C. Authentication Section:

8. AUTHORITY LINE. The authority line is used when someone other than the commander (or head of an organization) signs the military orders.
9. SIGNATURE BLOCK. This block includes the name, grade, branch of service, and title of the individual authorizing the publication of the military orders.

D. Distribution Section:

10. This section lists individuals and/or units that should receive the military orders, and the number of copies each should receive. It is included as part of the Request for Orders.

E. Margins.

11. The margins on military orders are the same as those used for a military letter. They should be 1" in from both the left and right edges of the paper.

Assume that the information on the Request for Orders has been verified and is correct. Use the information as it is shown.

The very first thing you do before you type military orders from a completed Request for Orders is to locate the format number on the Request for Orders. Reminder, this appears under VARIABLE INFORMATION.

Next, you find the format number in Appendix A of AR 310-10. You must use this format as you type the Military Orders requested. The LETTERHEAD is the first part of the Military Orders that you type out. In this lesson the information necessary to complete the letterhead will be given to you. The letterhead is centered on the page beginning five (5) spaces down from the top of the paper.

After you have entered the letterhead, the next step is to enter the TYPE OF ORDERS. This is done two spaces below the last line of the letterhead beginning at the left margin. The type of order must be all capital letters.

There are two types: ORDERS and PERMANENT ORDERS.

SAMPLE

DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY
Headquarters, 54th Infantry Division (Mech)
Fort Atterbury, Indiana 46124-9000

ORDERS 268-156 25 September 1994

BRADSHAW, JOHN R. 999-00-0844 CPT 3d Bn 3d AR (WZ14TO) Fort Atterbury, IN 46124-9322

ORDERS are used primarily to announce actions that affect the status of one or more individuals. Some examples are the assignment of an individual to a unit or reassignment from a unit, and the promotion or discharge of an individual.

PERMANENT ORDERS. Permanent orders are used primarily to announce awards presented to an individual, or to announce changes that affect the status of whole units. Some examples are the award of the Good Conduct Medal, the activation or deactivation of a unit, and the assignment or attachment of an organization or unit.

TEC LESSON

At the bottom of most formats contained in Appendix A, AR 310-10, you will find a section titled "NOTES." If the format you are using is for a permanent order, it will say so in the "NOTES." If it does not say "publish as permanent orders" in the notes, then it will be published as orders.

Remember: After finding the correct format needed in Appendix A, always read through all the "NOTES" at the bottom of the page before typing the Military Orders. If the "NOTES" do not direct "publish as permanent orders," then you will be using "orders."

SPACING.

NUMBERING MILITARY ORDERS

One of the most important parts of military orders is the orders number. Without it, or with an incorrect number, identification and filing of the orders would be impossible. An orders number is composed of two and up to three numbers separated by a dash (-). It follows the term "PERMANENT ORDERS" or "ORDERS." Refer to Figure 2-4, AR 310-10.

Both Permanent Orders and Orders are numbered using the same method. Since you may be publishing both types of orders on the same day, you should maintain separate numerical logs for each type to help you keep track of what numbers you use.

The method is as follows:

- First, look at the number "1" in "1-2." The first day of the year in which an order is published is counted as day 1. This number is then increased by one on each additional day that other orders are published. The number does not increase on days that go by without permanent orders being published. "18-1" would mean that this was the 18th day or the 18th time during the year which an office had published orders (Permanent Orders or Orders). Only one order number (the first number) can be used per day.

- The "2" in the orders number "1-2" means that it is the second order of that type published that day. There is no limit to what the second number can be. If you publish only one order on day 1, your only Order or Permanent Order number would be 1-1. If you published 446 orders, on day 1, your last order number would be 1-446.

Your logs should contain the type of action being taken on each order (promotion, reassignment, award, etc.), to whom it applies, and the date of the order. The logs you maintain are your logs to help you on the job. The illustrations on page 21 show a suggested format for numerical logs that could easily be maintained for both types of orders. Take a look at them now.

When you publish the first order of a new year (calendar or fiscal year), you must put on the order a statement identifying the last order issued (of that series) for the previous year. Reference Paragraphs 1-11(a) and (b), AR 310-10.

The date that is entered on military orders is the date the orders will be signed and published. In this lesson you will be given this date as "today's date." For purposes of this lesson the date of the military orders will be entered with NO abbreviations.

PRACTICE EXERCISE 2

Situation:

You are an administrative specialist in the Orders Section, Administrative Services Branch. Your letterhead information is Department of the Army, Headquarters, 54th Infantry Division (Mech), Fort Atterbury, Indiana 46124-9000. Today's date is 1 November 1994. Your supervisor has handed you a Request for Orders (shown on page 20). He has directed you to type the required military order for administrative review, signature and publication. The following information and materials are available to you.

- The completed Request for Orders (page 20).
- The logs you maintain for numbering each type of military orders, showing the most recent entries (page 21).
- This is the second order of the type required, to be typed today.

Using the information above and AR 310-10, type the Heading Section only of the required order on your paper. DO NOT go any further than the heading section.

ORDERS 305-2 1 November 1994

Your heading section should look like the one shown above.

1. Did you center the letterhead as shown?

2. Did you "space" as shown?

3. Did you use the term "ORDERS?" If you chose "PERMANENT ORDERS," then you made a mistake. Remember, use the Request for Orders to get the format number, then turn to that format number in Appendix A in AR 310-10 and read the notes at the bottom of that page. If the notes do not say "Publish as a Permanent Order" or similar words, then it is simply an "Order."

4. Did you show the correct Orders Number? If not, go back and review that section of this lesson on the numbering of orders. Reminder -- use the order numbering logs!

5. Did you write the complete date, military style? If you made any errors, go back and review those sections of the lesson where you made those errors.

BODY SECTION

STANDARD NAME LINE

Normally, the first part of the body is the STANDARD NAME LINE. It identifies the individual or unit that is affected by the military order. When typing military orders, copy the STANDARD NAME LINE just as it is given to you on the Request for Orders. The individual's name will always be in capital letters and in the following order: last name, first name, then middle initial.

Enter the STANDARD NAME LINE on the second line, two spaces below the orders type and number. Begin it at the left margin. See figure 2-4 for spacing, and figures 2-5 and 2-6 in AR 310-10 for examples of the STANDARD NAME LINE.

CONSTANT INFORMATION

Two lines below the name line beginning at the left margin is the CONSTANT INFORMATION. This tells what action is being taken by the orders. You will NOT find this line on the Request for Orders. It is given to you as a part of the particular format in Appendix A of AR 310-10. All you have to do is copy the information word for word from the format in Appendix A. See paragraph 2-7 and Figure 2-5 in AR 310-10.

LEAD LINES

If you look at the sample Request for Orders for SSG Thompson (page 20), you will see that there is a "list" of several words and phrases followed by colons(:). These are the LEAD LINES. These LEAD LINES are given to you on the Request for Orders, and are also given as a part of the format in Appendix A, AR 310-10.

Begin the LEAD LINES two lines down from the LEAD LINE heading and block them along the left margin. Use single spacing between the LEAD LINES. See paragraph 2-8 and Figure 2-4, AR 310-10 for additional information.

TEC LESSON

Some of the formats in Appendix A, AR 310-10, have a second list of lead lines following the usual lead lines. This second list has the words "FOR ARMY USE" above it. Take a look at FORMAT 342 in Appendix A, AR 310-10, for an example. Notice that these LEAD LINES are abbreviated. The person or unit affected by the order does not have to use the variable information that follows these special lead lines. That information is just "FOR ARMY USE" by certain offices, such as the Finance Office, or the Transportation Office.

VARIABLE INFORMATION

VARIABLE INFORMATION corresponds to the lead lines. However, unlike the lead lines, this VARIABLE INFORMATION is not given to you as part of the format contained in AR 310-10. It varies depending on the individual or unit affected by the orders.

You get the VARIABLE INFORMATION from the Request for Orders. See paragraph 2-9 and figure 2-3 in AR 310-10. Notice in figure 2-3 that VARIABLE INFORMATION which requires more than one line is NOT indented from the left margin.

AUTHENTICATION SECTION

There are only two main parts in the Authentication Section. The first is the Authority Line. It is used only when the orders are being signed by someone other than the commander. The Authority Line is entered on the second line below the last lead line and begins at the left margin. It consists of the words "FOR THE COMMANDER," followed by a colon (:). See Figure 2-5, AR 310-10.

The second part of the Authentication Section is the signature block. It is made up of the name, the grade and branch of service, and the title of the person who is authorized to sign the orders. Under certain circumstances another person may be authorized to sign for that person. Read paragraph 1-15, AR 310-10. It begins at the center of the page on the fifth line below the Authority Line, or on the fifth line below the last Lead Line when an Authority Line is not used.

See Figure 2-6 in AR 310-10.

You should now know how to complete the Body and Authentication Sections of military orders. You may check your understanding by taking Practice Exercise 3.

PRACTICE EXERCISE 3

Using the Request for Orders on SSG Giordano (shown below) and AR 310-10, type the Heading, Body and Authentication Sections for his military orders. This will be orders number 305-3 on 1 Nov 1994.

LTC Pershon will sign this order for the commander. His signature block information is: Calvin E. Pershon, LTC, AG, Adjutant General.

The Heading, Body and Authentication Sections on your worksheet should look like those above.

If you made any errors, go back, review the lesson and correct those errors before going on. Save your worksheet, you will need it later.

DISTRIBUTION SECTION

You now know how to prepare most parts of Military Orders. On the same line as the first line of the signature block, you enter at the left margin the word, "DISTRIBUTION" followed by a colon (:). On the next line, at the left margin, list the individuals and/or organizations, followed by the number of copies each of them is to receive. The number of copies is enclosed in parentheses.

You get ALL this information from the Request for Orders. All you have have to do is copy it. Take just a minute to think about a special kind of distribution listing known as FORMULA DISTRIBUTION. You may have already noticed this type of distribution on some of the previous Requests for Orders or published orders that you have seen in this lesson.

A FORMULA DISTRIBUTION is nothing more than a single letter of the alphabet being used in place of a long list of units and/or individuals. Once again, this FORMULA DISTRIBUTION, if used, will be given to you on the Request for Orders.

PAGE NUMBERS

You should limit the length of orders to one sheet (front and back of page), if possible. If there are several pages only the second and subsequent pages are numbered.

PRACTICE EXERCISE 4

Now finish the worksheet on Giordano by doing Practice Exercise 4 on the DISTRIBUTION SECTION. The needed information can be found in the illustration on page 25.

CHANGING MILITARY ORDERS

It is extremely important that military orders be accurate and correct when published. Any mistakes in military orders must be corrected. An error in an order announcing a grade change could keep an individual from being promoted.

Incorrect information in military orders may result in errors being entered on other forms and documents. This could seriously affect the status of an individual or a unit.

There are several methods for changing military orders. Three will be described below:

- Amendments
- Rescissions
- Revocations

These three actions are taken using the same procedures you have just learned for typing military orders. After you receive a completed Request for Orders, get the format number from the Request for Orders and then find that format in Appendix A, AR 310-10. Following the format, and using the information from the Request for Orders, you would type the AMENDMENT, RESCISSION or REVOCATION just as you did for Military Orders. When changing "Permanent Orders," your AMENDMENT, RESCISSION, or REVOCATION will be "Permanent Orders." By the same token, "Orders" are used to change "Orders."

Exactly how do these three methods change military orders, and what is the difference among the three?

1. AMENDMENT. An amendment changes or corrects all or part of previously issued Military Orders. Take a moment to look at FORMAT 700 in AR 310-10.

2. RESCISSION. A rescission cancels previously issued military orders as of a certain date. Military orders are rescinded when there is no longer a reason for keeping them in effect. See FORMAT 705 in AR 310-10.

3. REVOCATION. A revocation recalls previously issued military orders. The result is the same as if the military orders in question had never been published. See FORMAT 705, AR 310-10.

Note: Only the headquarters that published the original military orders in question can amend, rescind, or revoke those orders. See paragraph 1-18, AR 310-10. The Request for Orders will tell you and give you the number of the format to use.

TEC LESSON

There are two other methods for correcting Military Orders. The first is through a CORRECTED COPY. This simply means that the incorrect military orders (already published or issued) are retyped to correct the wrong information. See paragraph 1-19, AR 310-10 for further information.

If incorrect orders are issued by another headquarters, a second method, an ENDORSEMENT, is used. The ENDORSEMENT method permits a commander to make small corrections, additions or changes to existing orders issued by another headquarters (paragraph 1-20, AR 310-10).

You will not be required to type a corrected copy or an endorsement in this lesson; however, for information purposes, a correct endorsement to military orders is illustrated below.

SELF-EVALUATION EXERCISE

The Self-Evaluation Exercise gives you a chance to see whether you understand how to type military orders and whether you are ready to take the posttest for this lesson.

If you know how to type, type your responses. If you do not know how to type, handwrite your responses.

If you are typing your responses, you will need a typewriter, typing paper, correction fluid, and AR 310-10. If you are handwriting your responses, you will need a pencil, lined paper and AR 310-10.

Using the information below, the Request for Orders on Page 32, the logs of Military Orders on page 33, and AR 310-10, type (or write) the Military Orders. When you have finished your military orders, review it for accuracy.

Situation:

You are assigned as an administrative specialist in the Orders Section, Administrative Services Branch. Your letterhead information is: Department of the Army; Headquarters, 54th Infantry Division (Mech), Fort Atterbury, Indiana 46124-9000. So far today, 1 Nov 94, you have issued one "Permanent Orders," and three "Orders." The signature block for mi'itary orders is: Calvin A. Pershon, LTC, AG, Adjutant General.
